The Power of Marketing In B2B Decision Making
Executive Summary

Increased complexity
BDMs feel the buying process is becoming more complex and unwieldy.

Multiple stakeholders
With more internal staff involved in the approval process than previously.

Less vendor contact / opportunity to influence
Meaning brands have less opportunity to directly influence and advise B2B buyers.

External comms are crucial
Brand presence via comms is felt to be important to familiarize and educate the buying audience.

Brand strength simplifies approval and buy-in
With buy-in easier to obtain for brands that have a strong presence via a broad comms strategy.

Increased Complexity in B2B Buying process

73% of BDMs in large corporations say ‘the procurement process is more complicated nowadays’

Quotes from BDMs around an increase in complexity:

‘Over the past couple years, our organization has aimed to have greater oversight by leadership and finance into all contracts so what was once an easy contract signed by myself has become a multi-step process of review and signature’

‘The bigger the company, the more complicated the procurement due to hierarchical process and structures.’

‘Bureaucracy in all organizations like mine are hard to navigate through for necessary approvals - There is a lot of documentation required even before a project can be approved, all the way through vendor selection.’

More Stakeholders Involved In The B2B Buying Process

68% of BDMs in large corporations say “The procurement process involves more people than previously”

‘The procurement process starts with the end-use customers and goes all the way through to the vendors, the people in between such as the admin teams, the departmental heads, accounts department, operations department, quality department all are involved in this process.’

‘I definitely think for smaller contracts, value wise, there likely needs to be less people reviewing and signing than what we currently do. For some of our larger contracts, I’m ok with having multiple eyes on it so we’re not missing anything.’

‘Online purchasing options means more team managers get involved in sourcing and purchasing decisions which adds complexity to the purchasing journey.’

Quotes from BDMs around an increase in stakeholders:
Increasing Levels Of In-housing And Self-Serve Procurement

89% of BDMs in large corporations say “A lot of vendor evaluation is conducted in-house before any contact with vendors”

Quotes from BDMs around less vendor contact:

"Now just about everything is submitted electronically and we rarely need to speak with someone unless there is an issue or question."

‘I think most buyers are using tools like SAP and Ariba to interact with buyers at the sales level, and are not communicating via phone or email as much. This is to maintain legal records, reduce error in communication, and save time.’

‘Nowadays it seems like a lot of the RFP process has been removed, and there is less interaction with account managers.’
B2B Buying Journey

Vendors Have Less Opportunity for Direct Contact With Buyers

81% of BDMs in large corporations say “The buying process involves less direct contact with vendors than previously”

Quotes from BDMs regarding less vendor contact:

‘I agree there is less contact because we purchase all of our inventory through digital means and do not have any direct contact with vendors.’

Marketing Leaders Recognize The Need For Creativity in B2B Advertising

Interviews conducted with leading Global B2B Marketers:

‘My career has mainly been in big consumer marketing. I think the data around emotion in B2B is actually stronger. It’s a bigger decision. You’re talking about people’s careers, you’re talking about a decision where if it fails, you get fired and your livelihood is under threat. It’s a far bigger decision than reaching out for a packet of detergent.’

John Rudaizky, Partner, Global Brand & Marketing, EY

‘If we all recognized our decision makers and target audiences as human beings, we would start to see more and more creativity. I think B2B is ripe for creativity, especially if we really think about who it is we’re communicating with and how they go about making decisions today.’

Alicia Tillman, Global CMO, SAP

‘I’m pushing my team towards more creativity all the time. Sometimes the data-driven approach takes precedence and people forget the creativity. And I kind of understand because you get so excited about the data you have. But actually, when you combine those two, then you have a very powerful and compelling combination.’

'Advertising is helpful in understanding what capabilities and services organizations have to offer.'

'Content in association with a trusted media brand makes a brand more credible to me.'

'I am not in favor of getting “9 touches” from a marketer in “9 days”. Having an advertisement outside my work life that impacts my work is more likely to get my attention.'

'It's easier to get internal buy-in if it is a strong, well-known and established brand.'

'Absolutely, we have lost potential customers simply due to them recognizing our competitors from ads.'

'This makes them seem like a larger and more well known company and that I can trust them.'

'For us, we really focus upon white papers and reports where we can get more detail when doing our research.'

'It is definitely easier to get someone to agree to use a vendor that is familiar and well respected when lobbying others.'

'For us, we really focus upon white papers and reports where we can get more detail when doing our research.'

'If reports and content familiarize me with the brand, then I will feel more positive and confident about the choice and will be able to convince others as well.'

'It is easier to get procurement buy in for a better known company, even a more expensive company, simply due to brand recognition.'

Summary and Conclusions

The purchase journey is now more complex and involves more stakeholders than ever before.

Vendors are often distanced from the buying process due to in-house scoping and evaluation.

Buyers feel advertising and marketing is essential to build brand awareness and credibility amongst an internal audience.

Advertising that goes beyond the traditional B2B route helps to create cut-through and brand strength.
